Preface

This small manual is to be considered a sort of Guidelines for the trade unionists who want to negotiate an Transnational Company Agreement (TCA) with a Multinational Company.

Starting from the Social Dialogue, meant as a process of consultation between the social partners in order to reach a common position on several topics regarding the socio-economic policies.

The positive outcome of this constructive dialogue is the signing of a Transnational Company Agreement where the social partners, including the Global Union Federations, have been able to reach a common position on certain matter(s).

Once you got such an Agreement, it has to be respected and properly implemented in order to be effective. For this purpose several actors have to play their own role. This Agreement will be valid worldwide, that is wherever the Multinational Company has its business units

Reading these pages you'll discover what a TCA is for and why sign it, both from a Multinational point of view and from a trade union one.

Very often you will find references to Europe/European Union because a huge number of Multinational Companies come from this Continent and they are engaged worldwide and the majority of such TCAs have been signed in Europe gathering a great experience during the years. We do think that this kind of agreements could be exported everywhere in the world.

In the next pages you can learn how to write down, step by step, a Transnational Company Agreement what are the fundamental topics to include and how to check its implementation once you signed it.

You'll also find some specificities belonging to the sectors that you have to bear in mind and to insert in the TCA. A list of the main Global Union Federations with the sectors they cover and their e-mail addresses is contained as well in this manual. It helps you to have a direct support in case you need it.

Some examples of TCAs (IFAs) are included in the last part of this manual.

You can use them (as a template) or adapt them according to your needs.

I can only wish you to sign fruitful agreements for the protection of workers all over the world.

Social Dialogue (SD)

Worldwide:

Social Dialogue is a process where the actors negotiate in order to influence socio-economic policies (labor market, social protection,...).

It aims to foster the growth of employment and social well-being; concerning topics of social interest with a more favorable dynamic for reaching the agreements.

It may occur:

- between the social partners (workers' and employers' organizations) themselves (bipartite) or
- with an active involvement of Institutions (tripartite).

SD consists of relations between Labour and Management with or without a direct government involvement.

SD is a flexible instrument that allows workers' and employers' associations and governments to manage changes and reach social and economic targets.

So the aim of Social Dialogue is to find opportunities for workers to obtain decent work in conditions of freedom, human dignity, equality and security.

In Europe:

- It is considered one of the pillars of the social model of the European Union.
- It is quite well structured in all the sectors, having several joint meetings every year.

Even if it might be tuned, it can be considered a good practice to export.

INTRODUCTION

What a Transnational Company Agreement is

A Transnational Company Agreement (TCA) is considered a new form of social dialogue in Multinational companies.

A TCA is signed on voluntary basis (there is no obligation from employers'/trade unions' side to sign it) that includes reciprocal commitments extended to all territories where the Multinational company operates and covers employment and working conditions and relations between employers and workers or their representatives (industrial relationships)

Why a Transnational Company Agreement

A Transnational Company Agreement has to be meant as the tool to achieve a fair globalization with the aim to counteract the negative effects of the economic globalization in the aspect of worker protections and of the high competitiveness of companies.

Most of the Multinational Companies operating worldwide (mainly in Africa and Asia) have their Headquarters in Europe where they have some rules/laws to respect. These TCAs help Trade unions to have these rules respected even when the Multinationals operate outside the European perimeter. A Multinational must be socially responsible not only within Europe where they have precise rules but wherever they have their business.

The Transnational Framework Agreements (TCAs) are divided into:

- European Framework Agreements (EFAs).
- International Framework Agreements (IFAs) or Global Framework Agreements (GFAs)

European Framework Agreements (EFA)

EFA provides for voluntary, innovative and socially agreed solutions in Multinational companies mainly within European Union perimeter, having a regional scope of application and are signed by The European Trade Unions Federations (ETUFs) and/or National trade unions and representatives from the Central Management.

European Works Councils (EWCs) are often involved in the negotiations of such TCAs

EFA covers a variety of specific issues such as Health and Safety at work, Restructuring, Anticipation of changes, Training, Equality, Data protection.

EFAs are different from IFAs both in content and procedure also regarding signatories.

European Works Councils (EWCs)

EWCs are transnational bodies providing for information and consultation of workers in Community-scale enterprises or groups of enterprises according to Directive 94/45/EC and its recast Directive 2009/38/EC on EWCs.

EWCs are highly significant bodies in terms of European industrial relations since they represent the first genuinely body for a social dialogue at European level and at company level.

The requirements for a Multinational Company to be obliged to establish an EWC are having at least 1,000 workers within the EU Member States and at least 150 workers in each of at least two Member States.

It is left to Member States to decide about the mechanism for determining the selection of workers' representatives, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity. All countries where the Multinational operates are entitled to have at least a worker's representative.

Multinational Companies are obliged to inform and consult the EWC at least once a year or whenever it's needed.

EWCs are consultative bodies - they are not entitled to sign agreements -Even if there are some TCAs signed by EWCs alone (not all EWCs or not all its members are unionized) - For this reason, ETUFs don't recognize TCAs signed by EWCs alone.

World Works Councils (WWC)

In some cases, instead of setting up an EWC, some Multinational Companies together with Trade Unions agreed to sign an agreement to set up a World Works Council (or Global Works Council or an International Work Council) with the aim to extend the information and consultation rights to workers employed in the extra EU countries where the Multinational Company is operating (many cases in the metalworker sector: Renault, Bosch, Electrolux, GdF Suez, Volkswagen).

On April 29, 2015 an amendment was signed in arder to strengthen the participation of workers' representatives from outside Europe in the Renault Group Works Council and to establish a single status for all.

The Amendment was signed by union representatives from major Renault facilities in Europe, IndustriALL Global Union and Renault management. It is part of a process initiated several years ago to build social dialogue at global level and strengthen the role of workers' representation within the Group. The agreement sets out the various configurations for the Group Council meetings.

The World Works Council meets once a year for the purpose of interaction with top management on the situation and strategic issues of the Group as well as development prospects. It is composed of 40 titular members, 9 of whom are from outside the European Economic Area. In 2015, for the first time India was expected to have a seat on the Council while Morocco, where the company was operating in two plants with over 6,000 workers, was expected to have two representatives.

PURPOSE OF THE IFA

IFA (also called GFA) has a global scope of application and isconsidered a global tool whose main purpose is to ensure that the Multinational Company respects the International Labour standards in all the countries where it has its operations.

The term International Framework Agreement is used in order to distinguish a "negotiated agreement" from the voluntary Codes of Conduct (Ethical Code) that Multinational Companies usually adopt unilaterally to demonstrate their committment to Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR).

If Codes of Conduct are unilateral initiatives by the Multinationals alone, the negotiation of an IFA are to be meant like a shared CSR between the signatories (usually Central Management, International Trade Union and local Trade Unions of the country where the Multinational has its own Headquarters.

By the end of 2015, about 300 TCAs (IFAs and EFAs) had been signed. The majority of the agreements came into being after 2000. In most cases, the request to negotiate IFAs came from the home country trade unions where the Multinational Company has its Headquarters and also from EWCs (EFAs cases).

IFA

represents a means to foster industrial peace through the dialogue with their workers and trade unions.

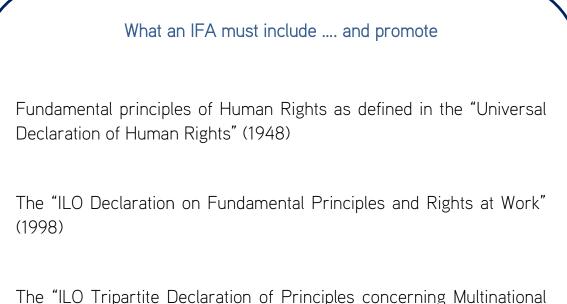

is a way to promote a positive public image in order to avoid potentially economically damaging public Campaigns, to have access to capital and product markets, and building up good relations with political and economic decisionmakers an opportunity to have a commitment from the Multinational Company to respect some standards on human and labor rights wherever it operates and having the aim to improve the conditions of workers and trade unions worldwide too.

...and from a Trade Union point of view IFA is....

 $\rightarrow$ Monitoring its implementation is a crucial aspect. It avoids a risk of a dangerous complicity of the trade unions. It just refers to those unfair Multinational Companies that consider IFA as a flagship for their business.

The "ILO Tripartite Declaration of Principles concerning Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy" (2000)

The OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises (2011).

Multinational Company and trade unions must:

Recognize that the industrial sustainable development is in the interesso of both the company and its workers;

Recognize the need for open democratic industrial relations and for fair collective bargaining procedures for union and company representatives;

Recognize that corruption, bribery and anti-competitive practices distort market rules and hamper economic, social and democratic development.

All IFAs are based on ILO Core Labor Standards.

The majority of the IFAs refer to:

- UN Conventions No. 87 (the freedom of association) and
- No. 98 (the right to collective bargaining).

A great number of IFAs also refer to Convention No. 135 (non-discrimination of labor representatives).

Most of the IFAs recognise the following ILO Conventions

- No. 29 and No.105 (abolition of forced labour),
- No. 100 and No. 111 (prevention of discrimination in employment and equal pay for work of equal value),
- No. 138 and No. 182 (elimination of child labour).

Other topics to include in an IFA

Various agreements go beyond the recognition of the ILO Core Labour Standards in ensuring also decent wages and working conditions as well as a safe and healthy environment. In some cases, IFAs are used as a tool to extend labour policies and cooperative industrial relations to the company's locations outside the home country.

It's crucial to include in the IFA a monitoring mechanism in order to verify the implementation of such an IFA. Experiences with the implementation of existing IFAs can vary considerably. In some cases, employees have been informed about the existence of an IFA, in others, more concrete steps have been taken to set up international union networks (local trade unions where the Multinational Company operates with trade unions from the Multinational Company home country through the International Trade Union Federation) that are an active role of monitoring by verifying and ensuring if an IFA is correctly implemented or not and in case take the necessary steps for complaints.

It's very important to set up a mix monitoring group (representatives from the Company – International Trade Union Federation – Trade unions from the Multinational home country) in order to evaluate and monitoring the implementation of the agreement also through inspection visits at workplaces. In some cases, at least one annual meeting with the monitoring group and the Company management has to be foreseen in the agreement in order to be updated on the already completed and ongoing orders and the new ones awarded for the future.

It's recognized that no legal enforcement mechanism exists at the global level. This means that any enforcement of IFA provisions depends on the Company Management will to cooperate and/or on the of trade unions ability to oblige Multinational Companies to solve complaints.

Although IFAs are considered to be useful in those countries where labour legislation is weak or poorly enforced and also where Trade Union movement is not so powerful, some case studies show that nowadays, IFAs find application also in old and new EU Member States.

Refer to the Global Trade Union Federation (GUFs) of the sector concerned (see list above)

GUF, together with the trade unions of Morocco and the MNC's Management, are the actors of the negotiations.

Once you have established a contact with both of them you can start fixing dates for the meetings and begin the negotiations.

Follow the template (provided by the GUF) to write the agreement including all that is specified in "what an IFA must include" referring to ILO Declarations, OECD Guidelines for Multinational Companies, Human Rights, ext...

Remember to include: specificities of the sector (if needed), the monitoring mechanism (follow up), the duration of the agreement and the commitment for a wide dissemination in all the languages and the business units of the MNC GUF/TUs and MNC will insert the IFA in their own websites as a means of dissemination also for setting up a trade union network.

If the Multinational Company Headquarters are located outside Morocco

Refer to the Global Trade Union Federation (GUFs) of the sector concerned GUF, together with the trade union(s) of the country where the Multinational Headquartes are located and the MNC's Management, are the negotiators of the IFA.

If the MNC Headquarters is within the European Union and has an EWC, its steering group can be present at the negotiations.

Once you have established a contact with both of them you can start fixing dates for the meetings and begin the negotiations.

Follow the template (provided by the GUF) to write the agreement including all that is specified in "what an IFA must include" referring to ILO Declarations, OECD Guidelines for Multinational Companies, Human Rights, ext...

Remember to include: specificities of the sector (if needed), the monitoring mechanism (follow up), the duration of the agreement and the commitment for a wide dissemination in all the languages and the business units of the MNC. GUF/TUs and MNC will insert the IFA in their own websites as a means of dissemination also for setting up a trade union network.

Why a trade union network

Setting up a TU network is very crucial and useful.

It's very important establish, at first, a contact (through GUF) with the TU(S) of the country where the MNC has its own Headquarters, and then also with TUs of other countries where the MNC operates, referring always to the GUF.

TU network helps:

- for solving problems that could arise at local level where the MNC is engaged with its works (the TU(s) of the country of the MNC can intervene directly with the Central Management before planning an eventual visit on the spot).

- for a better implementation of the agreement, having a constant monitoring locally.

- for inviting (when needed) at the annual meeting with the Central Management, representatives from TU(s) of those countries that had problems, together with the local Management, an "enlarged" social dialogue could be helpful in finding solutions that could fit both sides.

REMEMBER: an IFA must be supported by a well structured TU network in order to be properly respected and implemented!

Explanatory notes:

• EWC (Comitato Aziendale Europeo – CAE)

• The International Labour Organisation (ILO) was established in 1919, in recognition of the need to protect the fundamental rights of all workers. There are 174 member states of the ILO. All member States of the ILO have an obligation to observe the principle of freedom of association simply by virtue of their membership and formal acceptance of the ILO Constitution. The adoption of the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work and its follow-up 1998, has recently strengthened this obligation.

• In the para on "Child labour shall not be used. Only workers above the age of 15 years". This might be reduced to 14 years in the case of developing countries, see C.138.

• The relevant ILO Conventions on wages are C. 131 Minimum Wage Fixing 1970, C.95 Protection of wages 1949, C. 94 Labour Clauses (Public Contracts) 1949.

• In the context of working hours each State should promote the adoption of the principle of the progressive reduction of normal hours of work as laid down in ILO Conventions Hours of Work (Industry) Convention, 1919, (No.1), Forty Hours Week Convention, 1935 (No. 47) and Reduction of Hours of Work Recommendation, 1962 (No. 116). This means that normal hours of work shall be progressively reduced without any reduction of wages of the workers.

Overtime compensation could be financial or in the form of time off.

• For the Building, Construction, Wood, Forestry and Allied Industries the following ILO standards are especially important: C.155 Safety and Health at Work, C.161 Occupational Health Services, C.162 Asbestos 1986; C.167 Safety and Health in Construction 1988; ILO Code of practice for health an safety in forest work; ILO Code of practice on safety in the use of synthetic vitreous fibre insulation wools (glass wool, rock wool, slag wool).

The example of CSSM GRANDS Salini – Matarrese Consortium

Another example of IFA also present in Morocco (CSSM GRANDS - Salini – Matarrese Consortium) currently in force (below you'll find the full text) can be considered a best practice (also a template for a new IFA) for several reasons:

- contains specificities of the sector (building in this specific case) related to migrant and posted workers, Consortia, contractors, subcontractors and suppliers, bogus selfemployment (highlighted in yellow in the agreement) that are subject to the same rules of Salini-Impregilo.

- has an efficient monitoring system of the IFA implementation:
- a) through the trade union network
- b) through the annual meeting with the MNC Management foreseen by the agreement itself
- c) through some visits during the years (when needed) in those business units of those countries where serious problems arose (i.e. Island and Qatar building-sites)

International Frame Agreement between SALINI-IMPREGILO S.p.A. and BWI, FENEAL UIL, FILCA CISL and FILLEA CGIL

An an international company operating as a contractor in complex largescale infrastructure projects, Salini Impregilo S.p.A. results from the merger of the two major Italian construction companies (Impregilo S.p.A. and Salini S.p.A.).

BWI is an international trade union and organizes workers of the construction, building, wood and forestry industries and of the allied trades and industries. BWI represents 320 affiliates in 125 countries around the world.

Salini Impregilo S.p.A. and BWI along with the Italian federations Feneal-UIL, Filca-CISL and Fillea-CGIL:

- recognize that the industrial sustainable development of the construction industry is in the interest of both the company and its workers;
- recognize the need for open democratic industrial relations and for fair collective bargaining procedures for union and company representatives;
- recognize that corruption, bribery and anti-competitive practices distort market rules and hamper economic, social and democratic development;
- highlight the need to promote and monitor the implementation of the fundamental principles of Human Rights as defined in the "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" (1948), the "ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work" (1998), the "ILO Tripartite Declaration of Principles Concerning Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy" (2000) and the "OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises" (2011).

The parties commit themselves to working along these guidelines in order to achieve social justice and sustainable development, both within the activities and companies/consortia of Salini Impregilo, and with its contractors, subcontractors and suppliers.

In this spirit, Salini Impregilo S.p.A. and BWI are going to work together to assess the implementation of the following social criteria within all of the activities and companies of Salini Impregilo S.p.A..

Whenever a BWI affiliate seeks the recognition of a union, Salini Impregilo S.p.A. shall follow the most effective procedures. Salini Impregilo S.p.A. shall also allow its employees to join trade unions and ensure that workers' representatives shall not be discriminationaated against and shall have access to all workplaces necessary to carry out their representation functions (ILO Convention 135 and Recommendation 143).

Living Wages

Workers' wages shall comply with the applicable laws and collective agreements. They shall therefore be fair and non discriminatory, and sufficient for workers to cater for the fundamental needs of a decent life in the social context where they live and work.
